Jaded Macarons

Here's one for your little black book: Jaded Macarons, the new kid on the block, which opened its virtual doors in August. The bakery has pledged to go beyond what a typical connoisseur of macarons would expect to find in the treat. Its motto, "challenging what a macaron means to you," represents a desire to push the local industry to ever-greater gastronomic potential. Interested in pursuing innovative and fresh horizons while staying true to the Singaporean spirit, the store has so far introduced new macarons to the tune of Ang Ku Kueh, Kaya Butter Toast, Kopi Gao, Liu Sha Bao, and White Rabbit Candy. Fillings are made completely in-house, whether they be the roasted nut butter accompanying the Ang Ku Kueh macaron or the molten 'salted egg' buttercream inside the Liu Sha Bao flavor. The company has also completely pulled back the curtain on the macaron-making process, often walking its Instagram audience through the devoted step-by-step process that goes into every batch.

$15 for a box of 5; available at Jaded Macarons

24k Truffle Mao Shan Wang Snowskin Mooncake
Image credit: Golden Moments

Durians and mooncakes are considered 'rich' food, and if you believe in the saying that you are what you eat, then Golden Moments' range of durian-flavoured mooncakes will be right up your alley.

For starters, their limited edition 24k Truffle Mao Shan Wang Snowskin Mooncake ($795.00, $249.00) is not only accentuated with truffle paste and oil, but also comes with gold foil and a real pure gold plate designed by GK Jewellery. It's definitely leaving a lasting impression as a gift – whether it's for that business partner to clinch a pending contract, or hard-to-please in-laws.

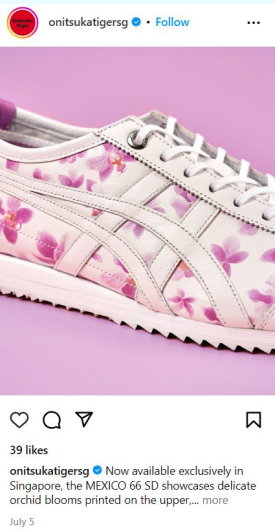

If you don't need all that 24k magic in the air, their Signature Mao Shan Wang ($249.00) and new Chocolate Hazelnut Chocolate Mao Shan Wang ($249.00) flavours each come in a box of 4 pieces, and will satisfy durian lovers with creamy 100% pure durian filling. Plus, they're now on offer at $108 with a 14k 24k deal until 8th September 2020.

SCENT JOURNER CLOUDS IN HEAVEN, $153 FOR 50ML

Home-grown Scent Journaler holds its own among the big boys. Incubated under NUS Enterprise and supported by Enterprise Singapore, the label was founded by chemistry major Joyce Lian. Her three "mood-enhancing" perfumes use olfactory chemistry to boost well-being, and are made from more than 85 per cent naturally derived ingredients. For something uniquely Singaporean, try Clouds in Heaven, a sensual scent with notes of honeysuckle, jasmine, ylang ylang and yummy pandan. Available at scentjournaler.com
